"HER PAINTED HERO," GRECIAN.
Most beroes are painted in bright, glowing colors—that is, real beroes are—but "Her Painted Hero" is not a real bero. He is of the variety that paints up and slown back of the footlights and fools the andience into believing that he is brave and bold and good, when in reality he may have a heart as black as midnight. It so happens that in "Her Painted Hero," which is on at the Grecian today only, this particular hero is not as mice as he is painted, and thereby hangs a tale—but we won't spoil the fun for you by telling you about it. Better come down and see it; you'll laugh till your sides ache.—Adv.

The picture is one of action and thrills. The story of the famous detectes and his faithful friend, Dr. Watson, is too well known to need repeating. The screen version gives Mr. Gillette opportunities for elaboration which were desired him by the stage and his photoplay is all that could be desired in every way. His supporting company is a strong one and the settings and exteriors are spiendid.

Most everyone has either read or heard of this popular play and all will want to see it. Patrons are advised that "The Heir to the Hoorah" will be shown today only.
